The Madison Monkey Story.

[Richmond Register]
Since the publication of Mulhatton's monkey story, Mr. Jas. B. Parkes, a modest, retiring, successful farmer, has received on an average twentyfive letters a day inquiring about the practicability of using cheap monkey labor. The letter-writing business has become a positive nuisance, and Mr. Parkes asks us to say :

1. That he has no hemp field, that he never expects to have a hemp field.

2. That he has no brother-in-law in Shelby county, that he has no brother-in-law in sale by G. E. Gaither. Shelby county, that he never had a brother-in-law in Shelby county, and he never expects to have a brother-in-law in Shelby county. 3. That he has no brother in Africa, that he never had a brother in Africa, and that he never expects to have a brother in Africa.

4. That he has no monkeys, that he never had any monkeys, and he nevex expects to have any monkeys.

Correspondents will please observe the above and give Mr. Parkes a rest. He is an innocent young man, and never did any body any harm, and he can't endure this thing much longer.
